GOING TO BED.—Directly after we write this item, we are going home and to bed. Now that is a very pleasant thought. We wonder how many thing it this night who are unable to do it. Not less than one thousand poor souls, men women, children in the City this night who have no home, no bed. Go where you will you will see them huddling up in dark door ways or creeping round the corner—there is always somebody just going round the corner, and always somebody just gone round. Cold as it is this December night, there are more souls—that is if such poor miserable objects have any souls, which some folks who pretend to have themselves apparently, doubt or else they would try to save them—there are more souls in the street this night than there are perfectly happy ones inside of all the marble palaces that line the sides of Broadway or Fifth avenue.

All the early hours of evening they wander up and down, looking into warm rooms and down areas of eating-houses, snuffing the savory steam and thinking—yes, they think.

"What?"

More than one half think, "Oh, how I wish I had a quarter—or only a shilling—or if it was but a sixpence! I wish I had three cents."

"What for? Would that get a lodging?"

Yes; such as such often get; but that is not what the wants of three cents. With three cents he would go to Cale Jones's grocery and get a drink—"a drink of rot gut." Rightly named.

Three cents for a drink, never mind going to bed, since he has no home to go to yet he is on the road home, and it is down hill all the way.

About ten o'clock, if you will stand around the corner, you will hear how the "licensed liquor dealer" advises his customers to go home and go to bed.

"Come wake up, you drunken son of a —— and clear out—go home and go to bed if you have got any; you cannot sleep here—I am going to shut up, I am going to bed."

Does the poor dejected loafer think of doing the same! Perhaps! If he does he thinks, "where?" If there is no chance in a coal box, or empty cask, he goes at last to the Police Station, and begs the boon of spending the remainder of the night upon a bench or hard dirty spot on the floor.

It is not drunken men alone who are going to bed to-night in coal boxes and Watch houses, but innocent sober women and children, who cannot say, reader, as you and I can, I am going home and to bed, for their only home is in the street, or some hole or den, where there is no bed.

Last night, at ten o'clock, a woman with a little child shivering in her arms, came into the House of Industry at the Five Points, and begged to be allowed to spend the night where her child would not freeze, for said she, I am so tired that I can walk no longer and if I sit down out door I shall fall asleep.

"Have you no home to go to?"

"No, alas, I am turned into the street, not for any fault of mine, in a City where all are strangers; not a single friend who I can ask to give me a bed."

"The cause of course is ——"

"Yes, Rum. That has destroyed everything—home—husband—all—all but life, and what is that, without any where to lay my head, in such a night as this?"

The poor woman was given shelter, a bench and a fire; it was all that could be given her, all, more than a great many will have this night, while you and I, reader, are enjoying the comforts of a home. While we are going to bed, a comfortable bed, in a good home, some poor woman or little child, is just going round the corner, looking for a place to go to bed in some coal box.

A GOOD SPECIMEN OF POETRY BY A YANKEE BOY.—A miller by the name of Wright, kept a large flock of geese, which he fed from the corn which was scattered about the mill. A scamp in the neighborhood had pursued the practice, for a length of time, of stealing from the flock, whenever he had occasion for a good fat goose. At one time, he had an occasion for an extra supply of geese, and it came into his head to sprinkle a little wit and poetry with his thieving; so after securing three of the geese, he wrote on a bit of paper:

"Mr. Wright, I bid you good night,
'Tis time for me to wander;
I've bought three geese, at a penny-a-piece,
And left it with the gander."

He then enclosed three pennies in the paper, and suspended them to the neck of one of the ganders. A boy with his grist arrived at the mill just as the story and poetry were being related to a crowd. The boy was very much taken with the poetry, or varses, as he called it, and was anxious to possess himself of it, so as to treat the family with it, when he got it. After listening attentively to the reading of it, three or four times over, he thought he had the verses all over, and started off for home; but, fear he might lose the jingle of the rhyme, he conned it over to himself all the way home, where he arrived, tittering and chuckling to the very ends his fingers, to think of the rich treat he had in store for the family. Johnathan first related the story of stealing the geese, with all the embellishments his ingenuity could invent. "But there's the varses," said he; "that's the cutest of all."

"Well, Jonathan, can you repeat the varses?"

"Oh, yes, I've got the varse safe enough, for I said them over to myself all the way coming home."

The varse went sorter this way:

"Mr. Wright, I wish you good bye,
It's time for me to be going;
I've bought your geese for three coppers,
And tied the money round the old gander's [neck!"

AN EXAMPLE.

Journeymen printers are, as a class, always poor in pocket. Not one in ten ever accumulates money from the proceeds of their daily labor. A large majority of them are single men. They live fast, die fast, and are wholly indifferent to the future. They obey the Scripture injunction to the letter, of "take no heed of the morrow." When they get tired of a "sit," or lose it, they "tramp" to another town.

But there are exceptions to all general rules. Now and then we meet one who saves his money. We had a printer in our employ for a twelve month past, who saved $350 from his wages in one year. A few weeks ago, he bought two land warrants, went to Wisconsin, and located two quarter sections of land. He commenced learning his trade at 18 years of age. The first year's wages $40, the second $60, and the third $80. He managed to save $15 of the $40, $30 of the $60, and $45 of the $80. As quick as he got a dollar to spare, he put it at interest. When his apprenticeship ended, he had on interest $133, having earned some $35 by extra work. His bills while in our employ ranged from $12 to $17 per week. After paying his board and washing he immediately deposited the residue, except what was required to keep him in clothes, of which he was careful. He is but little over 23 years of age. He has learned a trade, owns 320 acres of virgin soil of the fertile west, which will rise in value 20 per cent. a year, and has $220 lent at ten per cent. interest.

We had other compositors in the office who were faster setters, as robust, older, and better educated, and they saved little. The earnings of each week were anticipated, and to-day they have little they can call their own. Our economical friend practiced the maxim that a penny saved was worth 2d. earned. He never visited theatres, concerts, balls, shows, doggeries, or gambling dens. He never spent Friday or Saturday's earnings to pay for livery horses and carriages on Sunday. He believed in Franklin's maxim that "Time was money," and never employed a "sub" when he could possibly work at ease. He was moral, steady, industrious, kept his own counsels, and attended to his own business.

In another year he will have money enough to clear and stock his farm, build a house, get married, settle down for life, a happy independent farmer.—Clev. True Dem.

CITY OF CHICAGO:

THURSDAY MORNING, DECEMBER 15, 1853.

THE NEWS.

The Steamship Europa sailed yesterday at noon from New York, with seventy passengers, and $671,000 in specie.——Santa Anna has been proclaimed Dictator for 10 years with the consent of the principal states.——In the Senate on yesterday, Mr. Shields introduced a bill authorizing Illinois to select the residue of certain lands granted to that State in 1847 to aid in the construction of a Canal.——Mr. Dodge, of Iowa, introduced a bill to organize the territory of Nebraska.——A serious difficulty has occurred between Senator Gwinn, of California, and Secretary Guthrie, which, it is feared, will result in a duel.——On Monday the 11 o'clock train from Buffalo, when about five miles west of Dunkirk, on the Lake shore road, was thrown off the track by running over a cow, and one passenger, a child, mortally injured, and several others dangerously hurt.——The mails of the Arctic have come to hand but they contain but little which has not already been received by Telegraph. The dates are up to the 30th of November, from Liverpool, and the 28th from Paris. An unusual military excitement pervaded the war department of France, and the minister had ordered the extension and reorganization of the "Sharp Shooters" (chasseurs de Vincennes,) of the imperial army. At the opening of the Prussian Chambers, the President of the Senate referred in his speech to the absolute neutrality which the Cabinet has decided to observe.——Mr. Soule, Jr., son of our minister at Madrid, has challenged the Duke of Alba to fight a duel. The difficulty grew out a quarrel at a ball.——Papers from India and China had reached England by extraordinary express.—The war still raged in Burmah, and reinforcements had gone from Calcutta to aid the British.——From Singapore we learn that the shipments of gold dust from the Archipelago amounted to four hundred and fifty-two buncals, and the exports to four hundred and thirty-eight buncals. Sales, chiefly for shipment to China, were made at the rate of $28 50 per buncal.—In China the insurrectionary leaders maintained their position at Shanghae. The U. S. war ship Macedonian was at Hong Kong.

As usual our Telegraphic report was in error in stating the amount of the Harper's loss at the late fire in Cliff and Pearl Streets. It now appears that the total loss was in the neighborhood of one million two hundred and fifteen thousand dollars, of which the buildings, stock, &c. of Messrs. Harper comprised more than one half—the value of their establishment being set down at $800,000. They were only insured to the extent of $250,000, and are consequently clear losers to the sum of $550,000. The property of Messrs. Coolidge is estimated to have been worth $200,000, one half of which was insured. The balance of the property destroyed belonged to various persons mostly engaged in buildings in that vicinity, and was valued at $214,000.

FROM CALIFORNIA.

The files of California papers brought by the steamships El Dorado and Daniel Webster contain little of particular interest to the generality of readers.

As is usual late in the fall, business was quite brisk, but prices were still low in consequence of the large stock of every description of goods on hand.

The returns from both the grain and gold fields were very encouraging. The miners were doing well, if not better than ever; and in one place a lump of gold weighing eleven pounds had been discovered.

The inhabitants in the vicinity of Humboldt Bay were recently startled by an earthquake, but it did no serious damage.

A considerable amount of property had been destroyed since the sailing of the previous steamers, by fires in San Francisco, Sacramento, Sonora, Downieville, and Stockton, but the loss in no instance was heavy.

A prize fight for one thousand dollars a side lately came off between John Carey and a person named Corrigan. The latter was declared the victor after thirty rounds, each of which was sharply contested.

The health of San Francisco was good, and the weather agreeable, but we regret to observe that the papers as usual chronicle a large number of murders as having occurred in different parts of the State.

We find some additional information concerning the expedition against Sonora.

The small pox continued to rage with great virulence among the natives of the Sandwich Islands. No further changes had taken place in the ministry.

From South America it is reported immense discoveries of gold had been made by the Amazon expedition fitted out by Ecuador and Peru.

NEW LINE OF STEAMERS.

It is officially announced in the Moniteur Belge, of the 25th of Oct., that the Government has adopted laws authorizing the establishment, at Anvers, of the direct use of steam navigation between Brussels and New York. The company may be considered as being constituted. It is going to construct and buy the necessary ships, and they will be brought into use during the year 1854. An official notice says, it is not necessary for us to show the utility of this enterprise, in its effects, commercially, between Belgium and the United States. On account of the central situation of Belgium, her liberal laws in respect to navigation, and her speed in, and economical manner of communication, the way of Anvers offers decided advantages to the commerce of the United States. The Government of Belgium has guaranteed a minimum interest in this enterprise, and its success is therefore certain. This is the first notice we have seen of this enterprise, but we have no doubt that it will be received with pleasure by those who have business or other relations with that portion of Europe.

Maine Law in Canada.—The Montreal Sun gives a friend in the cause of Temperance has notified Mr. Dre, Secretary of the Upper Canada League, his readiness to give $25 if twenty persons can be found to give the same sum; or to be one of ten to give $50, or one of five to give $100 towards the Temperance lectures to agitate in different parts of the country in favor of the Maine Law.

☞ The steam ferry boat Montague was burnt, on the morning of the 8th inst., at her moorings at Brooklyn. She cost $32,000, and was insured for $20,000.

MR. CURTIS' SECOND LECTURE BEFORE THE YOUNG MEN'S ASSOCIATION.—"THE AGE OF STEAM."

We were happy to observe the large and appreciative audience which thronged the Tremont Hall on last evening, to listen to the second lecture of this gentleman. It was a practical and pleasing refutation of the theory that we often have preached to us, but which we never follow, that in order to draw a house to listen to any description of entertainment, indiscriminate and fulsome puffing is absolutely necessary, and that an honest expression of opinion must be most scrupulously avoided, if that opinion should chance to be in any wise unfavorable.—Forever deliver us from the task of public reporter, if such is to be standard by which our pen is to be governed. There is nothing which will so soon and so surely destroy public interest and attention in any subject, as continued and highly wrought praise, while at the same time no plan can be devised which will so certainly excite and preserve attention and interest, as bold, judicious and candid criticism. We are as desirous of speaking the truth in our capacity of public journalist as we are in our private life, and we should very soon lose our self respect were we to descend to praise where blame is due, or to censure when admiration should be bestowed. Our instructions to our reporters are very simple. They are comprised in three words "Speak the Truth," and we follow the same precept in all that we say of speakers, writers, or politicians.

The subject of last evening's lecture, as previously announced, was the "Age of Steam." It was treated in a manner that fitly corresponded with the nature of the theme. As steam is all-powerful, expansive, and energetic, beyond all other material motors, so the speaker's words exhibited a strength, expansiveness, and energy, which no other muse than the Goddess of Steam (by what classic nomenclature she may be known) could have inspired.

As on the previous evening, his exordium was beautiful. Thoughts triumphed over the mighty deep. A tree was fallen, and rude hands and still ruder tools scooped out its heart, and shaped its form, and launched it on the waves, and thus the sea was ruled by man. There came another agent, magic steam, and Jonathan was the exponent of its meaning, and of the age itself. He went whistling round the bases of the eternal pyramids, calculating their height and size, strolling with a nonchalant air into the august presence of the great Mogul, making familiar morning calls upon the Pope, and knocking irreverently at the most sacred doors that hide royalty from the vulgar gaze. For thus it was, that the spirit of the age, the age of steam, sounds its inquisitive whistle at the bases of ancient pyramids of error, ignorance and superstition, walks with deliberate self complacency into regions of thought and speculation where mystery sat shrouded and sacred for centuries, brings self-despised man to a level with his fellow man, and, pulling the tinselled garments from kings, finds them but rags. It is not inclined to take powdered wigs as indubitable evidences of profundity of brains, and insists upon informing divines that strength of lungs, and purity of lawn are not the only things requisite to fit him for a spiritual teacher. In art, in science and literature, the progressive age of steam, as exhibited and incarnate in Jonathan, is equally manifest, and away he darts through them all, giving to those who accuse him of being superficial, "Jack of all trades and master of none," an answer very similar to that often furnished by editors of morning papers, when they have unintentionally trod upon the corns of some of their patrons, that is, "no time to be particular." With his anxiety for Cuba and the South Sea Islands on the South, his sympathy for Sir John Franklin on the North, his Indians to fence out and his Negroes to fence in, what time has he for study! Here he stood alone upon the confines of time—another Columbus for an unknown and boundless future!

The "age of steam" and Jonathan are particularly opposed to old fogyism. His motto is—Keep all you have, and get all you can. He prowls about Cuba, seeking how he may devour it, and sends Commodore Perry to Japan, with the very pleasant message that he is the sun, that the moon is his wife, and the earth their heritage; that he will bridge the seas, pour the full tide of vigorous life over the stagnant desolation of ages, attach Japan to his lightning train, throw the rest of Asia into the baggage car, and dart away towards the borders of civilization.

There was also a poetry of this age of steam, and Jonathan is a poet. "He blesses the steamers that are sweeping by, and cries 'Sweep on to your destination with your freightage of busy thoughts and throbbing purposes, and as you pass churn up the waters into poetry.'" He seems to print a path in the cloudland of the future for the rushing railway train and telegraph, which inspire him with hope, for he looks on the machinery of this age as a great scheme of conductors lying spread and ready for the nobler influences of a coming period.

Mr. Curtis' style is forcible and a fit expression of his thoughts. He makes no pretentious display, and can lay no just claim to eloquence. He is, however, by far the best lecturer we have yet listened to before this Association. He has not only read books but has studied men; and with his scholastic lore, has joined the experience of the man of the world. He is not so verbose as Mr. Whipple, but there is a fineness and aptness in his illustrations to which Mr. Whipple will never attain. Mr. Curtis is not at all obnoxious to the charge which Mr. Whipple is undoubtedly guilty of, namely, of using words to cloak mere common place, or to express doubtful originality. On the whole, we congratulate the Young Men's Association, on their success in having at least given us one lecturer who has not disappointed the expectations entertained of him.

SENATOR SEWARD AND PRESIDENT PIERCE.

The Washington correspondent of the Baltimore Sun, writes:

"Gov. Seward is among the distinguished arrivals. He declared to-day, with a significant smile, that he was wholly converted to 'the President's policy,' and that he is perfectly willing to take his stand on the Baltimore platform as now construed by the Union. This is certainly a piece of good nature on his part and puts at once an end to all further agitation of the slavery question."

If we correctly apprehend the position of the Union upon the Compromise, the conversion of Mr. Seward to it was not very difficult. It leaves him nearly in his old tracks; and it only requires that the fog of prejudice and misrepresentation be brushed away to show the conservative position of that statesman upon that and all kindred questions. The sensible portion of the southern people entertain a far higher respect for him and his position to-day than they do for the Castle Garden politicians who attempted to save the Union upon the trade and barter principle of—buy our goods and we'll protect your slaves. There was too much selfishness in that movement to inspire confidence or respect among intelligent people, especially at the South, where their chivalric feeling leads them to look above those paltry considerations, and to admire manliness of thought and independence of action, though it be antagonistic to their peculiar views and sentiments.—Buffalo Express.

Boston Opinions of the Message.—Gen. Pierce comes from New Hampshire, and our readers may desire to know how his message is received in the East. The Boston Courier says:

"This document is the poorest that ever proceeded from a President of the United States when his duty called upon him to look Congress in the face. And that nobody may mistake our meaning, we pronounce it emphatically deficient in courage, manly spirit, decision, self-respect, sincerity, straightforwardness and that honest resolution to follow the path of duty at all hazards, which ought to characterize both the language and the actions of him who occupies the elevated station of President of the United States."

The Boston Journal says:

"We feel confident that those who bestow attention upon it will arise from its perusal with a feeling of disappointment. * * * Instead of a bold, manly avowal of the policy and doctrines of the administration, we have vague generalities, bare statements of facts which have been made know to the public through the columns of the press, &c., and [illegible]; and a grouping together of words, apparently with the design to leave the reader as much in the dark in regard to the views of the administration, on the matter of which they treat, as he was before he read them."

General Wool.—This distinguished officer in the American army has been in this city for the last few days, superintending the embarkation of troops for California. He left yesterday. Gen. Wool has had his headquarters at Troy, and is in command of the northern division of the army. He has recently received an order from the Secretary of War, removing him to Baltimore. Before he leaves, we learn that it is the intention of the citizens of Troy, and other friends and admirers, to give him a public dinner, as a testimonial for his services. In that event, we shall take care to report the proceedings.

To Gen. Wool is due, in no small degree, the success of the Mexican campaign. He led the American troops through an immense desert, under great difficulties, and he planned and fought the decisive battle of Buena Vista before Gen. Taylor came up. Whatever glory springs from the victory belongs more to Gen. Wool than to Gen. Taylor, though the latter has always received the lion's share of it. Gen. Wool is both a practical and a well informed soldier, and he is well deserving of the contemplated honor.—N. Y. Herald of Sunday.

There can be no act more richly deserving of reprobation than the attempt to rob the dead of their well earned laurels. To traduce and slander the living is base enough; to steal the chaplets of a nation's honor and gratitude from the tomb of a departed hero, is a degree of moral turpitude to which none but the vilest of the vile would willingly and knowingly descend.—The above article from the Herald is such an act. It is an attempt to glorify a living soldier at the expense of a departed hero, and the baseness of the effort is only to be equalled by its utter want of any foundation in truth. The history of the Mexican War completely refutes the assumption that to General Wool is due its success, and no one who remembers the incidents of the battle of Buena Vista, can for one moment hesitate to believe that had it not been for the presence of General Taylor upon that field, we should now have to recall the 22d and 23d days of February as the anniversary of a mournful and disastrous defeat, instead of a glorious victory. It is true that General Wool commenced the battle of Buena Vista, and for a while was the commanding officer of the field. Of his personal bravery and skill in tactics, there can be no doubt. But he does not possess that influence over the minds of men which inspires them with confidence, and makes them certain of victory, which General Taylor did possess in a most eminent degree, and to which may be traced, in a great measure, his popularity with and influence over the rank and file of the army. Consequently, until General Taylor did arrive from Saltillo and take command on the day of the battle, victory did not perch upon our banners, but confusion, dismay and want of confidence pervaded the ranks, and almost lost us the day. It will be remembered that the action commenced (on the morning of the 23d) by a fire of the Mexicans upon the American extreme left, which was answered by the riflemen under Colonel Marshall, who had been reinforced by three companies of the 2d Illinois Volunteers, under Major Trail.—Throughout the fight, these troops, although opposed to a much superior force, maintained their ground with coolness, spirit, and effect. The enemy now concentrated on the left of its line a large force of cavalry and infantry, with the intention of crushing our left wing. The batteries of Sherman and Bragg, the Illinois Regiment under Colonel Bissell, Colonel McKee's Kentuckians, and the 2d Indiana Regiment, under Bowles, were ordered to oppose them, the whole of this force, with the troops before engaged on the left, being under the command of Brigadier General Lane. The entire line of the enemy was now formed, and moved towards the American line. The action on the left soon became general. After some time, the Indiana Regiment, which had hitherto fought with great bravery, turned upon its proper front, and commenced a disorderly retreat. The sight of this filled the enemy with exultation, and their wild shouts of triumph arose over all the din of battle. Their troops poured on by thousands, discharging small arms and artillery in front, and grape and canister from the left. Captain O'Brien was obliged to desert his position with the loss of several of his pieces, and Colonel Bissell's regiment, being entirely outflanked, and being completely unsupported, was obliged to fall back. The enemy were now certain of victory, and on every side continued to march dense masses of cavalry and infantry toward a station in the rear of the Americans. At this moment Gen. Taylor arrived from Saltillo, and from that moment the tide of battle turned, and through his skill, influence, and example, our troops gained a battle which has given to American arms a prestige which they had never before attained.

Whatever may have been the object of the Herald in this attempt to exalt General Wool at the expense of General Taylor, we are very confident that it will not succeed. An intelligent and patriotic people will never suffer such falsehoods to go unrebuked, and though republics may be ungrateful to the living, they are always just to the dead.

PUGILISM, ROWDYISM, AND LAW.

Another of those disgraceful scenes, called pugilistic exhibitions, took place the other day near Philadelphia, in the presence of a large crowd of "sporting men," and in defiance of the efforts of the police. We are indebted in the main to dear Old England for these manly exhibitions, and to the pauperism and crime that she has sent to us may be added the brutal prize-fights, and the consequences which flow from them. Our debt to her for much that is good is more than paid by the expenses we are driven to in the restraint of the criminals and the suppression of the crime that she has also sent us with the tide of emigration that rolls upon our shores with every passing year. The prize fighters are mostly English or Irish rowdies who are driven from their own land, either by the superior science of other prize-fighters, or to obtain a wider field for the exercise of their brutal business.

All of them have doubtless left their country for their country's good, and they might confer on us the same benefit, if they would take a liking to Australia or some other British colony. This land receives gladly all the steady and industrious men that Great Britain drives from her own shores, by the hard oppression of her laws, but her Prize fighters and criminals are curses to our people, as they were to the land that bore them. If all the prize fighters in the land could be enclosed in one large ring and like so many wild beasts be hurried on to fight and tear each other to pieces, we are not certain but it would be an exhibition desirable in every point of view, if it could occur but once. But these single prize fight have already become a pest which the civil power should suppress.—They are brutal and hardening in every consequence, and no one would engage in or encourage them who was not degraded below the wild beasts of the forest.

We expect to hear in a short time, that there is to be a bull fight or bear baiting somewhere in New York or Philadelphia, where a crew of hardened reprobates will gaze into the arena with all the vulgar delight of a Spanish hidalgo or Cuban senora. Foreign pugilists and keepers of cockpits and all of that wretched class of beings who live upon the exhibition of the fiendish passions of human kind, are as richly deserving of the oakum shop and the treadmill of a prison as any description of felons known to our laws. The truth is, there is power enough for the suppression of these offences, but the engine is never put in motion. In this universal impotency of the law, the wonder is that life and property are secure from violence for an hour; but we are mere holders of the same by sufferance of the rowdies who will destroy both when they happen to be in the humor. Law is an old bugbear used to frighten greenhorns with, but having no terrors for men; police officers are of no consequence—they dare not interfere with the voters of the land, and if they do, the crowd of attendants rowdies, as they did in this last fight, will prevent the execution of their duty. It is to be hoped that some of these miserable wretches, who have outraged our laws and disgraced the country as prize fighters, may be brought to punishment.

Has not the law slept away time enough?

We think the Advertiser takes a very contracted view of the causes of the rowdyism alluded to. The severest laws may be enacted and enforced against the gamblers, prize fighters, thieves and cut throats that abound in and around every city, and the evil will not be suppressed so long as the public permit the existence of institutions where such people are made what they are. Abolish the the retailing of ardent spirits, and more would be accomplished toward ridding community of the bad characters mentioned than could be done by any penal code. Look at our Police Courts, at [illegible] houses, jails, and State prisons! [illegible] [illegible] of the inmates owe their [illegible] to the rum trade.

FURTHER BY THE HUMBOLDT.

The arrival of the Humboldt's and Niagara's mails has given us some further interesting details of the news from Europe.

The most curious portions of the news, perhaps, is the reconciliation which has taken place between the two houses of the Bourbon and the Orleanists. It has transpired at a moment when Louis Napoleon was never so popular as he now is. The Duke of Nemours, the eldest of Louis Philippe's sons, has called on the Count de Chambord (Henry V.) at Frohsdorf. At that interview, the Duke, as representative of the Orleanist, came to an agreement with the legitimate heir that the Orleanists would recognise him as king. He was not to marry again, should his present wife die, by whom he has no children. The Count de Paris is to succeed him to the throne of France. The French, however, seem very well satisfied with the Emperor of their own choosing; and this sudden reconciliation is attributed to Russian and Austrian intrigue.

The following is an authentic statement of the present condition of the two belligerents:

The Ottoman army on the Danube presents a total of 160,000 men, viz:—12,000 foot, including the Egyptian contingent of 15,000 men: 12 regiments of regular cavalry; 40 batteries of artillery, well mounted and manned; 10,000 zaltics, or horse police; 12,000 Albanians. This army is divided into four principal divisions, which, at the time of crossing the Danube, were stationed as follows:

Omar Pacha at Schumla with 50,000, and in addition two battalions of picked sharp shooters with minie rifles.

Alim Pacha at Dabritchia with 35,000 men.

Marsopha Pacha, between Siston and Rustchuk, with 30,000 men.

Since the crossing and recrossing of the Danube, these troops have moved in directions, and a large army of reserve is forming at Sofia, in Baljarie, under Rifaat Pacha.

At Varna, Provoedia, Tirnova, and in the different forts in the Balkan range, there are 35,000 men.

The Russian army, commanded by Prince Gortschakoff, consisted, at the same date, of the Fourth Army Division, under General Dannenberg, (now operating at Oltenitza,) a portion of the Fifty Division under General Luders, sixteen regiments of Cossacks of the Don, with seven field batteries, under Count Orlow; two pontoon services and a park of heavy artillery. The portion of the Fifth Division, attached to the Fourth, consists of one regiment of infantry, a squadron of cavalry, four batteries of foot artillery, four do of horse artillery, and a battalion of chasseurs, amounting altogether to 70,000 men.

Since then General Osten-Sacken's corps, and the remainder of the Fifth Division, have been advancing by forced marches. As regards numbers the belligerents are pretty fairly matched.

Kossuth has written a letter on the Eastern Question to the citizens of Glasgow, called for the purpose of considering the aggressive policy of Russia. He says:

There is a haughty affectation in some quarters, which would like to place any possible British assistance to Turkey in the light of mere generous favor the to Sultan; and still that is not the case. Private individuals may act from sympathy—governments never do. It is important to rectify that affectation of generosity, because it does harm to Turkey by placing her in the unbecoming situation of a protected State. No, sir; if Great Britain would assist Turkey, it would do so, not from her generosity, but from the necessity of taking care of her own future, and her own interests. It is England's future which is at stake in the East, not less than that of Turkey. The chief principle to be decided there by the force of arms is "the sovereign independence of every nation to manage its own domestic concerns." That principle, violated in Poland, then in Moldo-Wallachia, and then in Hungary—always by Russia and her accomplices—is now intended to be finally overthrown in the East, and that done, no nation can further deem herself independent. Moreover, it is that balance of power by which European artifice has replaced the rule of right and of law which is at stake in the East. Russia, successful in her encroachment upon Turkish independence, either by direct conquest or by a hypocritical treaty—more deleterious than even a direct conquest could be—and the despotic Czar of oppressed Russia will be the master of the world, at least of Europe and Asia. America may yet for a while resist, until her turn shall come; but you certainly cannot, being, as you are, vulnerable both in Europe and Asia. The position of a first rate Power is not an absolute but a relative one. A first rate Power is that which is second to none. Permit Russia to take hold of a direct or indirect dominion over Turkey, and she will at once have have gained such a preponderance over and above every European Power, that in comparison to her you needs will have lost your position of first rate Power, and must become dependent on the good pleasure of the omnipotent Czar, at least in some of those political, social, and commercial relations upon the compound of which your position of first rate power is based.

* * * * *

Upon these considerations, I may now with confidence claim a verdict on the question—"What is the policy convenient to Great Britain's honor, and peremptorily required by her interests?" It is, sir, the avoiding of half resolutions, and half measures before all. Either an open and active share in the hostilities against Russia, by land and by sea, or a peremptory demand on Austria to put an end to her ambiguous foul play, and to define clearly her position either as an ally of Russia or of Turkey. But in no case is it such a policy which, aiming at absurdities, only prevent Turkey from availing herself of such legitimate means of self defence as circumstances dictate, and the loss of which no aid of far distant Great Britain can compensate.

THE REPORT OF THE SECRETARY OF THE TREASURY.

The Report of the Secretary of the Treasury is comprehensive and able, as far as a mere financial review is concerned. The following are the most interesting and important portions of the Report, with the exception of the statistical tables which should accompany them, but which we have not yet received:

The table I, accompanying this report, exhibits a separate list of the foreign articles, which it is hereby proposed shall be added to the free list for the purpose of reducing the revenue.—The revenue collected from the articles in table I, for the last year, is about $8,000,000 in which amount, it may be computed, the revenue will be reduced by the adoption of the proposed additional free list.

This will leave the revenue larger than a proper and economical administration of the government will require; and for the purpose of further reduction, it is now proposed to arrange the articles paying duty in two classes—the one class contained in the table K, accompanying this report, to pay what may be considered the high duty of 100 per cent, and the other class to pay the moderate duty of 25 per cent., and to include all the imported articles not in the free list, nor in the table K of high duties. The equalization will reduce the revenue about $4,500,000. This still leaves the revenue computed upon the imports of 1853, at about $45,000,000 from customs; below which point it is not proposed to reduce the duties until the public debt is paid. The change now proposed in the rate of duty is designed to take effect from and after the 1st of January, 1855.

The effect of making the duties twenty five per cent. on all articles imported not included in the free and higher lists, will be to give greatly less trouble in the collection of the revenue, and to raise the duties on some articles, and reduce them on others. When the duties are raised, the change may act in restraint of importation, and when reduced, in their favor; and the one result, to some extent, will counteract the other. The proposed reduction, had it been applied during the last year, would leave an abundant revenue for all the reasonable wants of the government in time of peace, and allow the proper addition to the army and navy to meet the exigencies of an augmenting population and an increasing commerce, and leave the receipts from the sale of public lands to be applied to the purchase of the public debt, to which these proceeds are pledged by law.

It is not proposed to enter into any extended argument to prove that the articles in table I should be added to the free list, nor to prove the propriety of the proposed reduction of duties to the uniform standard of twenty-five per cent. When revenue is not needed, articles of general use for manufacturing and other purposes, not the growth or production of the United States, or but partially so, should not be taxed; and no higher taxes should be levied on other importations than may be necessary for the economical wants of the government, thus leaving commerce as free and unrestricted as possible. Let the tariff be reduced as Congress, in view of the present wants of the government, shall deem best, the increasing population, production, industry, and enterprise of the nation will still necessarily add to the importations, and consequently to the revenue, which shall be needed for increased expenses.

The tables accompanying this report exhibit the free lists of England, France, Belgium, Portugal, Brazil, Austria, Spain, Russia, Cuba, the Zoll Verein, Chili, Netherlands, Hanse Towns, Norway, Mexico, and Sweden, and mark the progress of free trade among commercial nations. Unrestricted commerce, binding the nations of the earth in stronger bonds of peace by mutual benefits, has numerous and increasing advocates in this and other commercial countries. The principles of free trade may not yet be sufficiently verified from experience, in this and other nations, to justify its full adoption, but the progress towards free trade now proposed will be justified, it is believed, by both public opinion and public interest. It is considered that the taking off the duty on the raw material used in our manufactories will counteract the reduction of duties on foreign manufactures, and, when compared with the operations of the present tariff, will not materially affect the interest of domestic industry or commerce.

It is not proposed to change the principle of ad valorem duties, but it is for the consideration of Congress whether a specific duty on iron, made from the average of the last three or four years, ad valorem duties, will not give greater stability to the iron business, and more satisfaction to consumers, and, at the same time, prove equally beneficial to the revenue.

It is proposed to make salt free of duty. The average annual revenue from that article, from the five years to 30th June, 1852, is only $232,284, while the annual fishing bounties, exclusive of the drawback on pickled fish, for which the salt duties is a pretext, amount to $289,412, besides other heavy annual expenses to prevent frauds. A report upon the subject of the fishing bounties, from J. Ross Browne, with its references, is herewith submitted. For the reasons stated in that report, it is recommended that the bounty be repealed, and that branch of industry be left to the fair competition which causes other maritime nations to flourish.

THE REPORT OF THE POSTMASTER GENERAL.

The Report of the Postmaster General is a verbose and labored production, and evinces rather a troubled and undecided mind to reside within the breast of the author thereof. It does not suggest any remedy for the evils of which it complains, and passes over in silence many evils of which we complain.

We give below a synopsis of its contents.

The whole number of Post Offices in the United States at the close of the last official year, ending June 30th, 1853, was 22,320. Of this number 255 are of the highest class, the postmasters of which are appointed by the President.

At the present date, December 1st, 1853, the total number of post offices is 22,688. During the past year, commencing July 1st, 1852, 1,898 post offices were established; 479 were discontinued; there were appointed to office during the said year, besides the 1,898 postmasters to the newly established offices aforesaid, 3,000; 850 upon resignation, 225 upon death, 182 by change of site, 91 where the postmaster had moved away, 321 on the removal of prior incumbent; being 8,567 postmasters appointed during the year ending June 30th 1853.

At the close of the fiscal year ending on the 30th of June last, there were in operation within the United States, 6,792 mail routes. The aggregate length was 217,743 miles, 5,583 contractors employed thereon.

The annual transportation of the mails on those routes was 61,892,542 miles, and the annual cost thereof, $4,495,968; being about 7 cents 2 mills per mile. Of these 61,892,542 miles of annual transportation, 15,986,705 miles are required to be performed on railroads, at a cost of $1,601,321, being about 12 cents 3 mills per mile; 6,685,065 miles in steamboats, at a cost of $632,368, being about 9 cents 4 mills per mile; 21,330,326 mile in coaches, at a cost of $1,260,958, being about 5 cents 6 mills per mile; and 20,890,446 miles in modes not specified, at a cost of $1,055,313, being about 5 cents per mile.

The expenditures of the Department during the last fiscal year were $7,982,758. The gross revenue from all sources was $5,940,724.

It appears from the foregoing statement that the gross revenue of the year, ending June 30th 1853, fall short of the expenditures, by the sum of $2,042,031.

$1,571,000 of this deficiency is supplied by the balance on the Auditor's books on July 1st, 1852, and by the appropriations to supply deficiencies, amounting to upwards of $1,000,000, leaving $546,000 to be provided by Congress for the service of the year ending June 3th, 1853.

The following is a summary statement of the fiscal operations of the Post Office Department for the year ending the 30th of June 1853;

Balance to credit of Department, 1st of July 1852	$846,394 23
Total receipts in fiscal year, including the sum of $2,255,000 drawn from the Treasury under acts in Congress in aid of the Post office revenue	7,005,724 72
Total apparent revenue for the year	$8,852,119 00
Expenditures for the year	7,982,480 07
Leaving apparent balance to credit of Department, July 1st 1853	$869,639 93
From this should be deducted the unavailable balance due from late postmasters, brought forward from report of 1851-2	$113,949 73
Deduct also amount said British Government on account of postages of previous year properly chargeable to expenditures for last fiscal year	$118,031 50
	231,981 19
Leaving as the ultimate available balance	634,[illegible]
Excess of expenditures of all kinds over the revenues of the year, exclusive of the balances on hand July 1, 1852, and the amount drawn from Treasury to supply deficiency Revenue	$2,042,031 67

Thus we find the Cheap Postage System creating an actual deficit in the Revenue of the Department of nearly $3,000,000. The last Cheap Postage Act gives postmasters, in certain cases, an extra commission of 20 per cent., which costs about half a million a year. The European Mail Service has cost immensely more than the receipts amount to, and the California Mail Service costs two-thirds more than it pays. Postages on newspapers under the last reduction, have fallen off $400,000. But what of all this! Better the Treasury should pay, than the diffusion of intelligence be suspended.

DR. McLANE'S VERMIFUGE,
ALWAYS RESORTED TO WHEN EVERY OTHER REMEDY FAILS.

New York, Sept. 15, 1852.

☞ This is to certify that my child, three years old, was troubled with worms some six months. I had tried several kinds of medicine, but none of them done any good; and it was not until I tried Dr. McLane's celebrated Vermifuge that she found any relief. I gave her the contents of one bottle, which brought from her a very large quantity of worms, but they were so completely cut to pieces it was impossible to count them. My daughter is now doing well indeed she is completely restored to health. I therefore take pleasure in recommending it to parents. I would say, by all means keep a supply of this valuable medicine constantly in your houses. I have known many children to die suddenly from the effects of worms. It also cot unfrequently happens that children are treated for croup, when the choking and coughing is caused a together by the irritation of worms. Therefore, we say again, keep it always in the house; it costs but little, and may be the means of saving life; and at any rate it will save physician's bills.

MRS. LANE, No. 323 Eighth st.

P. S. Dr. McLane's Celebrated Liver Pills, also Dr. McLane's Celebrated Vermifuge, can now be had at all the respectable Drug Stores in this city.

☞ Purchasers will please be careful to ask for, and take none but Dr. McLane's Vermifuge and Liver Pills.—All others, in comparison, are worthless. dc13

LYON'S KATHAIRON.

☞ We wish to call the attention of the public to a source of luxury, comfort and happiness—to point neglect and a present opportunity of amendment. The numerous cases of baldness in America is truly surprising. The young can not take warning, or the old apply a remedy too soon.—Who that is old, but would avert baldness? Who that is middle aged but shudders at gray hairs? Who that is young but values the luxuriant locks of youth and beauty? Effects like these are stayed, as many years of otherwise premature old age is regained to youth by using Lyon's Kathairon.

Lyon's Kathairon is but 25 cents, in large bottles. Sold throughout the world, by all dealers. D. S. Barnes, Proprietor, 161 Broadway, N. Y. de1

A DESPERATE CASE OF SCROFULA CURED

By Holloway's Ointment and Pills.—Mr. Heydon, of Sydney, Wholesale Agent for the sale of Holloway's Medicines in New South Wales, states that Thomas Evans, in the employ of Mr. Charles Thompson, of Scrambula, was sorely afflicted for years with scrofula in the neck, and his body was covered with a peculiar kind of pimple, out of which exuded a watery mucous. He had been at considerable expense in trying various medicines, but without any good effect; he then used Holloway's Ointment and Pills, which in a short period so effectually cured him, that he has continued in the most perfect health to the present time. de13

HUSBAND'S CALCINED MAGNESIA.
FIRST PREMIUM SILVER MEDALS

HAVE been awarded for this preparation by the Franklin Institute, Pa., by the American Institute, N. Y., by the Mechanics' Association, Boston; and by the Maryland Institute.

In the Twentieth Report of the Franklin Institute, Pa., the judges of chemicals assert that this Magnesia is believed to be the best in the United States.

Its superior qualities consist in its being entirely deprived of carbonic acid and other impurities, its freedom from unpleasant taste, smell, or other disagreeable property, and without roughness or grittyness to the touch or palate.—One teaspoonful of it is equal in strength to three or four teaspoonfuls of common Calcined Magnesia.

Husband's Calcined Magnesia is highly beneficial in all diseases of the stomach and bowels, which are attended with acidity, and gives immediate relief to the heartburn. The effects of excess in eating or drinking are generally relieved by it, and it affords one of the mildest and most pleasant aperients, especially to persons who, from a sedentary life or other causes, are subject to frequent recurrence to laxatives. To persons of a bilious or gouty habit, it may be recommended with peculiar propriety.

Many of the complaints of children, in early infancy, and even at more advanced periods, are attended with acidity, and in such cases the calcined magnesia has a great advantage over other absorbants, as that is both an absorbant and acid in the alimentary canal, and acts as an efficacious yet gentle purgative. WEEKLY REVIEW of the CHICAGO MARKET.
OFFICE OF THE CHICAGO DAILY TRIBUNE,
Wednesday Evening, Dec. 14

Since our last weekly review, the market has remained about stationary. There being a suspension of business on the Lake, except among a few lumber vessels, and but little grain coming forward by canal, the produce business is of course almost wholly confined to the vicinity of the Galena depot. The last fleet of boats have arrived from the Illinois river, and all as some occasional one should come up within a few days, there will be no more grain received from that source this season. The buyers in our market at present are those for local consumption, or agents for Michigan mills. The facilities now afforded of shipping Grain by railroad to the interior towns east of us brings buyers into our market from abroad, and creates more of a lively feeling than has usually been the case during previous winters.

During the past six days, there have been received at the Galena depot, 583 bbls of Flour—12,6[illegible] bu Wheat—12?3 bu Corn—6,533 bu Oats—89 bu Rye—3719 bu Barley. The receipts by that source vary but little from the previous week. Wheat came in more abundant, and nearly trebled; Corn and Barley increased about one-half. For the week ending the 10th, there were received by Canal, 19,367 bu of Wheat; and 43,483 bu of Corn. About all the Corn that has been received by Canal has gone into warehouse—the few sales which have been made were for transportation to Detroit by Railroad. Oats are taken for local consumption, about as fast as they come forward. Barley and Rye are sought for but little, and the rates are more nominal.

We quote the standard prices as follows:

FLOUR.—Extra superfine No. 1 City Mills, $5,50—No. 2 family brands, $5. Country brands are held a little lower.

LOCAL MATTERS.

CARD PRINTING.

We desire to say to Merchants, and the trading community generally, that we have facilities for printing

50,000 Cards Daily.

Our selections of Type are new and of the most beautiful styles and our Card Boards are of the very best character.

We trust our friends and the public also, will remember us, for we intend they shall not regret their choice.

NEW YEARS' ADDRESS.

The Carriers of the Daily Tribune will pay fifteen dollars for the best New Years' Address, of about two hundred lines, to be sent to the address of the Editor, on or before the 20th of December. The addresses received will be submitted to an impartial committee, who shall decide which one shall take the prize.

New Market House.—The Common Council have granted the Committee on Markets the power to purchase a piece of ground for a new Market House near Van Buren Street Bridge.—The continued and rapid increase of the population in all sections of our city demands extra facilities for provisioning and supplying the people with all the comforts and necessities of life. Good substantial Market Houses, kept in a clean and neat condition, will be a benefit to any neighborhood. We are glad to see the Council taking hold of this subject.

More Brutality.—A woman named Mary O'Brien was arrested on Tuesday afternoon and lodged in jail, for abusing an infant daughter.—The inhuman mother was in a drunken fit at the time. The child's head is so badly beaten and bruised as to loosen the scalp in many places, and it is doubtful if it will recover.

Which will be the most effective manner of stopping such awful deeds—to hang such women in the Public Square, and make an example of them, or sentence them for two years in the Penitentiary?

COMPLIMENTARY BENEFIT.

We are quite pleased to hear it is in contemplation to offer Mrs. Barrow a complimentary Benefit on Saturday night, the last of her engagement in Chicago. We shall do our utmost to forward the views of our fellow citizens.

Theatrical.—A new and remarkably piquant little comedy has been well played for the last two nights at the Theatre. It is entitled "Two Can Play at that Game," and it should be repeated. Mrs. Barrow acted with great point and with much of that quiet, easy, natural manner which makes her scenes from every day life so extremely charming. Mr. Sedley made quite a hit as Octave, and Myers acquitted himself with tact and discrimination. This evening's bill is unusually attractive. "The Soldier's Daughter," one of our best comedies, is up for representation, and will be followed by a new and exciting drama called "Rafaelle the Reprobate," of which Green Room report speaks most favorably. The manager really deserves the greatest praise and support for the very liberal manner in which he caters for the public. This is the fifth new piece produced within the last ten days, and on Saturday next we are promised the great drama of "Pauline, or the Chateau of Burey," for the Farewell Benefit and last appearance of Mrs. Barrow.

SHAKSPEREAN READINGS.

Mrs. H. Lewis, a lady whose name has been associated with the annals of the American Stage for some eighteen years, and who, as a Shakspearian Reader, is very justly celebrated, has arrived in this city, and will give an entertainment on Friday evening, at the Tremont Hall. She will read on that occasion, "Richard the 3d," and the window scene in "Romeo and Juliet." Mrs. Lewis has been giving entertainments of this order in several cities of the East, South, and West, this season, and our exchanges speak of her in warm tones. She comes from Detroit to this city, and the Detroit Tribune thus commends her.

Mrs. H. Lewis.—This lady will give another entertainment at Young Men's Hall to-night, in which she will appear in full costume, as Rolla, in Pizzaro. Mrs. L. will doubtless be greeted by a full house, for those who heard her once, we think will go again. Her gestures and intonations show that she appreciates the beauties of Avon's bard. She intends visiting Chicago, and we most cheerfully commend her to the kindest consideration of the Press. She needs only to be heard to be appreciated.

A. H. & C. Burley, 122 Lake street, and Mellen & Co., 53 Clark street, have received Nos. 15, 16, 17, and 18, of the "Illustrated Industry of all Nations." We have so often mentioned this work that it is unnecessary to add anything further in its praise. The present numbers contain original articles on "The American Ephemeris and Nautical Almanac," "Standard Weights and Measures," "Latitudes and Longitudes—Coast Survey Methods," engravings of ceramic manufactures, groups in marble, carved wood and ivory work, silver and gold plate, porcelain goods, articles on lithography, flax and hemp breaking and cleaning machinery, Royal Manufactory of the Gobelins, and an elegant and very correct view of the interior of the Palace.

Constable Elected.—The Common Council, on Monday evening, elected James Farrel as Constable from Ward 9, by a vote of 12 to 1.

☞ The residents of North Chicago have petitioned the City Council for an increase in the number of Watchmen in that Division. They ask for eight additional Watchmen—the present number is four. The subject is in the hands of the committee on Police, including the Mayor.

Fizzled.—But a few of the immortal Tunnel Committee were present at the Court House on Tuesday evening, at the called meeting. Those who ventured to attend thought it best to adjourn for another two weeks, and thus save the responsibility of taking action in the matter.

SECURITY AGAINST RAIN, SNOW, AND COLD WEATHER.

Gurnsey's patent weather strip for putting on outside Doors or French windows, is just what every man that owns a dwelling should have put on immediately. You will thereby secure the smiles of the Ladies, and save your floors spoiled, and carpets rotted out by the rain driving in under the doors. This useful article can be had, put on your doors for the low price of $2 00 for Iron; $2,50 for Brass. Please leave your orders at C. & I. L. Runyon's Hardware Store, 191, Lake Street, and they will be promptly attended to.

POLICE COURT.

Before Judge Rucker. There was a lot of old fogy subjects on hand yesterday morning, and they were disposed of as follows:

Martha Carey would be more honored by emigrating to Liberia, than to be continually on the streets drunk and noisy. She was disposed of by a fine of $5, with a ticket for 60 days accommodation in the Bridewell.

Lewis Sherman, one of that class who are unable to take proper care of themselves. He was found by the Watch, prowling about one of the docks—a fit candidate for the pest house. As there was no criminal charge against him, he was discharged.

John Brown got beyond his latitude of good behavior, from the effects of "too much punch." A witness testified that defendant was abusive and wanted to fight, and make a hero of himself—but John's ideas were too much befuddled by the punch to remember any such circumstances. The bill against him was $6 75—rather an expensive punch!

John Shaw was complained of by a house full of neighbors, that he fired a revolver in his room at midnight, and as he was intemperate, they feared he would turn butcher, and murder them all! Shaw has been twice before the Court recently, on the complaint of his neighbors, and as they back up their testimony with strong numbers, he proves to be the sufferer.—He was fined $5, with a change of quarters to the Bridewell for 30 days.

CHRISTMAS CHEER.

During this season of festivity and joy, when all are prone to indulge in the good things of life to excess, let us not forget that the pleasures of the table, when enjoyed beyond the bounds of moderation, are at the expense of health. To those, however, who are inadvertently led into excess in eating or drinking, and who, in consequence, suffer from headache, slow stomach, lowness of spirits, indigestion, and other complaints, the penalty of over-indulgence, we recommend a trial of Wright's Indian Vegetable Pills, of the North American College of Health. This medicine will remove all complaints which arise from irregularity of diet, and cleanse the body from those bilious and corrupt humors which are the cause of the above distressing symptoms and of every malady incident to man.
